General Comment

I do not agree with this proposed rule change as it would limit my ability to use options in my IRA. As an investor, I believe I should have all available tools at my disposal to grow and protect my retirement money. Using options to limit my downside risk, especially in light of the recent market volatility, is a valued tool which allows me to sleep well at night. The intent of the proposed rule change is probably to protect less knowledgeable investors, however my choice of investment strategies should not be limited in order to protect anybody who refuses to learn the proper application & use of options.
